

This request was received recently and we told him that we would be happy to include his survey request with our January 2017 newsletter. Please help him by completing the survey.

Dear Brother/Sister,

My name is En-Ling Chiao, and I am a Christian doctoral candidate in Psychology at Claremont Graduate University in California. Currently, I am working on my dissertation research study, which aims to understand goal striving experiences in times of uncertainty among Christians via an online survey.

If you have been actively working towards a major life goal for at least six months despite real uncertainty about whether the goal can be attained, please share your experience by participating in the survey. The goal can be related to family, justice, career, academic work, health issues, finance, meaning of life, calling, etc.

Through your participation in this anonymous survey, more Christians' genuine thoughts and feelings can be heard and understood by church leaders, Christian counselors, and scholars. Moreover, your contribution will help the field of Psychology value Christians' experiences from a Christian worldview.

To complete the online survey click here [https://cgu.co1.qualtrics.com/jfe/https://cgu.co1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_6u6iyhf5P7V4GsR/SV_6u6iyhf5P7V4GsR]. Again, I thank you for your time and willingness to participate in the survey. I believe this can be a great opportunity for you to have some quiet time, reflecting on your goal striving experience and relationship with God.

The survey is anonymous, and no identifying information will be collected. The survey link will remain active until enough responses have been collected. Please also feel free to send this survey invitation to any fellow Christians who would be interested.

If you have any questions, please feel free to let me know.

God Bless,

En-Ling Chiao
